

AT THE SEA-SIDE.

Carnival at the Sea View House—The Zouaves on Duty—They Keep Time to the Music.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 6.—This "City by the Sea" has been swept with cool breezes the past few days; but the freshness of the salt air, please excuse the pun!—has added to its charms. It is the best tonic in the world for lungs cramped up by close air and overwork; for every inhalation is as long drawn as a string of Neapolitan macaroni, and makes one wish after a neck of the circumlocutory proportions of the ostrich, to enjoy the swallows.

Our Fire Zouaves are in the best of spirits; and their praises are equally distributed between the commissary department, the good weather, and the sociableness of the ladies sojourning here. The routine of drill duty, guard-mounting, and dress parade is enjoyable in the bracing air, with plenty of fair women about to admire the splendor of the red breeches; and the rations are—well, they are not, shortly after they have been drawn.

Since the coming of these soldier-boys our festive gatherings here have been quadrupled, hop upon ball and ball upon hop, until your famous base-balls are nowhere. These entertainments culminated last night in a la grande bal masque, par excellence, almost beyond the power of Mount old Saxon to find epithets magnificent enough to describe. The lower floor of the Sea View House was metamorphosed into fairy-like scene of gorgeousness and beauty, the walls resplendent with tri-colored bunting, the stars and stripes and varying military emblems entwined with evergreens. Jets of sweet-scented waters bubbled up in a flower-entwined fountain, and "hither the ladies were wont to stroll often. Hangings of choice flowers and rare plants shaded the dazzling lights of the many chandeliers and reflectors, and away out upon the foam-crested billows the streaming rays of brightness rose and fell with the pulses of the mighty ocean. Refreshing breezes were wafted through the great assembly room, and the whole "make up" was a titbit of enjoyment rarely had by a blase habitue of newspaperdom.

Fancy costumes among the gentlemen were plentiful as fruit blossoms in spring time, and as appetizing to the eyes. All the stock generalities were furnished up to order, the accepted comicalities were out in good trim, and the soldier boys were well represented in their gay uniforms. The ladies made to their mind their most charming costume—although peasants, flower girls, queens, gipsies, and the complainant allegorical were as attractive as ever.

The festival of music and dance was as successful in all its details as the hard-working managers labored to have it. The excellent Master of Ceremonies was Colonel A. G. Sellers, of the Fire Zouaves. The Floor Managers were Charles W. Smith and Henry C. Kistley, aided by Major Thomas Carstairs, Captain John Ryan, Horace Whitman, etc. The band attached to the Fire Zouave Battalion enlivened the intervals between the quadrilles and waltzes with well-played marches, while the dances were led by the orchestra engaged at the Sea View House, under the baton of Mr. Paul.

Not only was the great hall thronged with hundreds of light-hearted participants, but the spacious verandas and the surrounding grounds were thickly lined with spectators, gathered from other houses, eager to have a good share of the sight-seeing. Hundreds of odd-colored Chinese lanterns were hanging from the stunted pines that alone grow by the Jersey coast, and squads of bedecked strollers from the dances patrolled under the branches, eager to catch a whiff of pure ocean air.

The festivities were prolonged away into the "wee sma' hours" of this morning, the enjoyableness of the scene even increasing as at midnight the maskers cast aside their disguises, and face to face recounted some of the odd pranks played.

Happy will it be if our dancing Zouaves can skim out of disagreeable guard duty for the thirty-six hours that they yet camp here, in order to court some of good old Morpheus' attentions. "Save me from my friends!" may well be their cry now; for they are booked this evening for a faraway ball at the Surf House. Let us hope they may have their land legs on, as the sailors say, and not have a touch of the rheumatics to cripple them in their arduous duties on that occasion. The battalion leave for the City of Brotherly Love on Saturday afternoon; and what shall the disconsolate landlords do when they are gone from our gaze?

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, August 6, 1869.

The Season and the Boarding. This week is the commencement of the beginning of the time when the boarding-house keepers begin to pick up cottage and customers. Inklings of what the autumn and winter season is to do for them in the way of filling their rooms begin to drop in, and the letters of lodgings have begun to experience the flutter caused by anticipated occupants of rooms offering various degrees of comfort and convenience. Perhaps English ladies, reduced to the necessity of taking a few inmates into their family, fare the worst; for they have not lived long enough in the city to become acclimated to its institutions, and various young American gentlemen, I am sorry to say, who have not been brought up quite as scrupulously as they might have been, deem their fair guests in the American do not get along well together in this city as inmates of the same house. This is true, indeed, of other cities, but particularly so of New York, because here every Americanism asserts itself more glaringly and offensively (when it is of an offensive nature) than elsewhere.

Consequently, when Mrs. Albion advertises herself as a widow lady willing to receive two single gentlemen, or a gentleman and his wife (of her family, and the very first interview between the advertiser and the party responding to the advertisement, the Americanism fly out on the one side and the Englishisms fly out on the other, and Greek fire is not more inflammable in its nature than such material as this. "You're an English lady, I believe," says Mrs. Knickerbocker, for let Mrs. Albion place her 's ever so correctly, her nationality is detected in a nameless account at the first word she utters. "Yes," responds Mrs. Albion, "I'm proud to say I am English." "Oh! Albion, I thought so," continues Mrs. Knickerbocker. "Sorry to give you so much trouble, but I think we prefer residing with an American lady!" and the parties sever in mutual disgust. Mrs. Albion has herself assured me (she is the widowed daughter of a retired Brummagem green-grocer, and has been used to "very different things" in the old country) that she has tried in vain to win the American heart. She probably failed, because she did not learn to captivate the American stomach. She roars that she has spread before her American guests the finest Westphalia hams, which have been sneered at; that she has endeavored to beguile them with macaroni cheese, which has been quietly ignored; that she has lured them with the yellowest of Yorkshire puddings and the beefiest of roast beef, and that these have been once tasted, and then left to grow cold; that she helped them to salmon, and that they have helped themselves to boiled onions, and eaten them [with it before her very eyes, and after outgiving her own feelings by being a daily witness to these solecisms, she can endure it no longer, and has come to the conclusion, while she remains in New York at least, to allow her American boarders to go to the Devil (tunefully speaking) their own way. She is especially severe upon those muscular Christians, those thick-thighed Chesterfields, who, under the disguise of porters and expressmen, move trunks and furniture, and fling down with carelessness the side that is labelled "This side up with care," and she has no expression too strong for the Folan females who advertise in the Star, and put her through a perplexing catechism whenever she inquires after their character.

Commissioner Shields, of the United States Commissioner's office, has just had up before him a party charged with imposing upon the public a large quantity of spurious champagne. The names of the party are James Eberle and William Dougherty, and they are accused in the first place of selling spurious champagne without a license, and in the second place of making no returns to the assessor of their district. The testimony proved that in their store were found numerous dies and labels in imitation of those used in the manufacture of the genuine Heidsieck. It is interesting to learn that this spurious champagne tastes exactly like the pure! Perhaps this will be none the more difficult to understand when it is added that the spurious article is manufactured from cider and magnesia, with a little vitriol thrown in to give it tone! Well, if people will drink, they must expect to swallow not only their peck of dirt, but their gallon of poison, long before the expiration of the lapse of time appointed in the course of nature to that act of deglutition. Exposure does no permanent good. The sense of risk it creates only acts as an appetizer.

They say, don't ask me who, that Mr. Fisk is going to Make Money Out of the Eclipse. He has made money out of everything on earth, so why seeing that money is his god, shouldn't he make stamps out of something in the heavens? In brief, a great quantity of amateur astronomers want to witness the eclipse from the Jersey shore, and in order to oblige the public, Mr. Fisk (it is said) intends to-morrow afternoon running a line of stages to the Erie depot, where smoked glass will be furnished gratis to all buying excursion tickets. In return for this, the Agent of the Erie Road promises that the celestial performances shall be "upon a scale never before witnessed in this country," and refers, as a guarantee, to the past season at the opera house and the Fifth avenue.

Mr. Jefferson's Season at Booth's has commenced magnificently. People crowd the lobbies soon after the rising of the curtain, and I do not think that that played-out fraud the "oldest inhabitant" ever saw anything in the way of acting or public appreciation more thoroughly thrilling. ALI BABA.

DEWITT'S ASTHMA-TYPHOID STOMACH BITTERS. A general and wholesome vegetable Tonic. MISS READ'S INFANT RELIEF facilitates teething, and is a certain relief for Cholera Infantum, Dysentery, and Diarrhoea. Sold by druggists.

A SEASONABLE FAMILY REMEDY.—Aerobic Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Summer Complaint, Colic, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, and all affections of the bowels incident to childhood at this season of the year, are cured at once by DR. JAYNE'S CARMINATIVE BALM. It allays the irritation and calms the action of the stomach, and being pleasant to the taste, is readily taken by children. While it may be given with entire safety to infants, it yet acts promptly and thoroughly when administered according to directions to either children or adults. Sold by all druggists.

THE CONDEMNED OF HEALTH.—It is to expect health if the precautions necessary to secure it are neglected. The human organization is a delicate piece of mechanism, and requires as much intelligent care and watchfulness to keep it in order, as are requisite in the management of the most complicated combination of levers, wheels, and pinions. At this season of the year the body is peculiarly sensitive, because it is greatly weakened and relaxed by the continuous heat. The skin, in summer, with its millions of pores wide open, is a very delicate sort of instrument from the constant alluvial covering which it becomes under the action of the sun's rays. The muscles, too, are comparatively flaccid, the nerves tremulous, the blood poor, and the whole frame less capable of enduring fatigue and resisting disease than in cool weather. These indications of a depressed condition of the vital forces are so many unmistakable hints that nature needs reinforcing. Ordinary stimulants will not affect this object. They inflame and excite, but do not strengthen. The only preparation which can be depended upon to impart stimulant vigor to the system, and enable it to endure the ordeal of the heated term without giving way under the pressure, is HOPKINS'S STOMACH BITTERS, a tonic and corrective so pure, so harmless, so utterly free from the drawbacks which render many of the powerful astringents employed in medical practice more dangerous than the ailments they are employed to cure, that it may be administered without fear to the feeblest female invalid or the most delicate child. The cathartic and alternative vegetable ingredients, which are combined with those of a tonic nature in its composition, keep the bowels moderately free and perfectly regular while the work of invigoration is going on. The most blood depurants which the herbal kingdom affords are also among its components, so that it purifies, and regulates the system simultaneously.

A CARD.—Charles Stokes will sell the balance of his summer stock of clothing at reduced prices, in order to make room for his very choice stock of fall clothing now being manufactured.
